The Times, in its review of the year 1871, devotes considerable space to comments on Grant's message to Congress. The inference is drawn therefrom, that the neutrality which the United States has to far maintained with regard to Cuban affairs, may soon be exchanged for a more active policy. To this the Times finds no objection, and even goes so far as to declare it best that Cuba should be separated from Spain.

THERE is no parellel in the recorded pages of history of an invasion, so general and complete in its destructiveness, and one which has called forth the united paens of a grateful people, of "good will and peace," as the invasion of "Turkey in Greece," on the 25th day of December, 1871. Like all invasions, where to the "victor beloggs the spoils," a re-actionary movement is the consequence, and is followed by a general gastronomic disturbance of the victors, very cerious in its results. Turkey gone, and further delights have given place to SICK HEADACHE, SICK STOMACH, DERANGED LIVER, and a general disturbance of the system.
